How does Cannabis use contribute to overall wellness?

by Elana Cydney Vollen

CANNABIS' place in the Wellness Industry is now firmly cemented and most likely here to stay.

According to statistics , 55 millions Americans are now Cannabis users, with 71% of surveyed consumers saying they use cannabis for 'wellness purposes'. (1) 'Wellness' has many different facets so let's break some of them down individually.

From Our Members

ON THCV*:

"I have been using the CBD tinctures from Synergy for over 7 years with great success for helping with my chronic Multiple Sclerosis pain. Unfortunately, I continue to experience a few increased pain days that get the better (or worse) of me and I'm reminded that yes, I do have MS. For these elevated pain days I use THC-V along with CBD and this combination dramatically reduces that excruciating pain. Even though the THC-V is more expensive, I only have to use 2-4 drops with my usual dosage of ACDC (or other high CBD strains). Because I don't have to take much of the THC-V in combination with the CBD, it doesn't make me feel 'high' and I can get on with my day just like normal."

*THVC is referring to our #107/108 tinctures call Black Beauty, which has notable quantities of the cannabinoid THCV

Valentine X Tincture 25:1 CBD:THC

Reintroducing Valentine X Tincture!

For that special Valentine - YOU!

This was a popular tincture that we ran short on supply of but it is back!! Valentine X is a 50/50 Sativa/Indica hybrid mix. It is a phenotype of ACDC and is closely related. We have run lab tests to see if it was actually different than ACDC, and the terpene print is different, but fairly close. St. Valentine is the patron saint of Epilepsy, and hence this strain was named as it is helpful with seizure disorders and holds the good energy of St. Valentine! Being high in CBD, it is also a great anti-inflammatory, anti-anxiety, anti-cancer remedy.

CBD Medley - #160

Marvelous Medley!

This is a new product combining four hallmark high CBD strains and was made upon the recommendation of the pain specialist physician, Dr. Michael Moskowitz, that we work closely with. The premise being that all of these high CBD strains have slightly different properties, so why not combine several of them to create a broad-spectrum CBD remedy?

The four that are in this tincture are ACDC, Valentine, Therapy A, and Electra. It's in olive oil based tincture (technically an oil infusion) and its ratio is 24:1 CBD:THC.

Please note: These strains may vary depending on supply but will always be 4 CBD dominant strains
