Now, with good reasons, more and more people are exploring healthier, wholistic alternatives to address anxiety and stress. In addition to daily, enjoyable, physical exercise in fresh air and sunlight (20 minutes minimum), drinking ample water (6 to 8 glasses a day), eating a nutritious diet high in fresh vegetables, CBD (Cannabidiol) from cannabis can be a valuable addition! Indeed, CBD has noted properties which reduce anxiety; in the field of medicine, these are known as anxiolytics.

Cannabidiol works similarly to SSRIs (selective serotonin reuptake inhibitors) These medications typically work by interfacing with the serotonin receptors in the brain, as does CBD but with a gentler approach and no known side effects. By bringing your serotonin to normal levels, CBD-based supplements can significantly reduce the symptoms of anxiety.

Canna Yoga Anyone?

That's right! One of our staff members is also a yoga teacher and has great interest in facilitating a weekend 'Canna Yoga' retreat sometime in the Spring or Summer of 2020. This would be a very relaxing retreat at a beautiful center in Northern California where people can have a guided retreat that brings together Yoga with the therapeutic and spiritual aspects of CBD and/or THC.

Leonard Leinow, the founder of Synergy CBD and the author of 'CBD - A Patient's Guide' will come and do a guest lecture sometime during the retreat weekend.

If this is something that would be of interest to you, whether you are in California or out of state, drop us a line just to let us know you could be interested in such an event so that we can start planning it in earnest.

Sondra Barrett, PhD first started using a microscope for photography of human cells when she was engaged in cancer research at the University of California Medical School. Soon she began photographing the molecules of life to show children with cancer the hidden beauty inside them. For the past 40 years Sondra has captured the inner beauty of vitamins, minerals, hormones, mind altering substances, and wine. She uses these images not only for art but for teaching about how our cells and senses function. Author of 3 books including Secrets of Your Cells and Wine's Hidden Beauty, she posits the question whether molecules have more to reveal than just their chemical prowess. Her photomicrographs of 12 mineral salts associated with the Zodiac, reveal an intriguing exploration into our elemental nature. For more information, <https://sondrabarrett.com/about/>
